No Hopyard crossings

Report unveils bus plan

PLEASANTON — A report to be presented to the Pleasanton Elementary School District board tonight will reiterate changes in the transportation service for the 1975-76 school year which commences Thursday.

The major adjustment, according to Doug Rose, assistant superintendent for fiscal services, will be caused by boundary changes in the Del Prado area.

Rose notes that K-4 students from Del Prado will be bussed to Alisal. "Under this plan," Rose comments, "no K-4 student is required to walk across Hopyard to attend elementary school. All 5-8 students from this area are walkers to Harvest Park excluding a handful of 6-8 youngsters who have opted to remain at Pleasanton Elementary.

"In providing the option for enrollment between Alisal and Walnut Grove in the Pleasanton Valley area, no K-5 student is required to cross Santa Rita Road to attend Alisal School. Where this is occurring, it is at the option of the parent," Rose says.

Rose adds that in order to reduce transportation costs by $30,000, certain adjustments in transportation services have been made. First, the split-reading bus runs have been eliminated excepting for the Alisal program and minor service for Valley View. Additionally, the walking areas have been extended one-fourth mile from previous years.

"This, in essence, means that the walking distance for grades K-3 is extended to one mile," Rose says, "with the first bus stop located 1¼ miles from school. Similarly, the walking distance for students in grades 4-8 has been extended one-fourth mile, with the first bus stop located 1½ miles from school. When these quarter-mile extensions are applied throughout the district, the following bus stops are eliminated," Rose reminds:

HARVEST PARK — Hansen and Calle Reynoso, Paseo Santa Cruz and Calle Altamira.

PLEASANTON — Kottinger and Moselle Court, Vineyard and Vine, Vineyard and Linden, Concord and Palomino, Valley View School, Alisal School.

VINTAGE HILLS — Vintner Way, Touriga and Tawny, Chardonnay and Sylvaner, Chardonnay and Sauterne.

VALLEY VIEW — Touriga and Tawny, Palomino and Norton, Norton and Tannet, Vintner Way and vacant lot, Vineyard and Vine, Chardonnay and Sylvaner, Touriga by cyclone fence, Vintage Hills School, Pleasanton Elementary School.

Under revised attendance boundaries adopted last spring after a series of public hearings, students in Amador Estates and Jensen Tract will go to Alisal (grades 6-8 to Pleasanton), Willow West to Alisal (6-8 to Harvest Park), Pleasanton Meadows, Las Positas, Mohr-Martin and Heritage Valley to Fairlands (7-8 grade students who are currently enrolled at Harvest Park will have option of staying or going to Pleasanton) and Pleasanton Heights, Lower Vintage Hills and Vineyard Terrace to Valley View (6-8 to Pleasanton).

Youngsters through grade 5 at Komandorski and Camp Parks will go to Fairlands and 6-8 graders to Pleasanton.

They had a ball

Kids from Komandorski had a grand time filling up a six foot earth ball (left) which took one hour and then rolling (right) it from the gas station back to the Pleasanton Recreation Department through Aquatic Park. The purcase of the ball by the Rec Dept. was possible through the Association of Community Action Program (ACAP), a federally funded procedure through the Office of Equal Opportunity (OEA). The ball will feature activities whereby "team work" is emphasized instead of competition. The ball is composed of a heavy rubber bladder inside of a solid white canvas shell. Ideas for painting or decorating the ball may be directed to Delores Bengtson, Pleasanton Recreation Department, 200 Bernal St., Pleasanton, 94566.

Transportation problems trouble school groups

PLEASANTON — Two parents will address the Pleasanton Elementary School District board at tonight's regular meeting, scheduled for 7:30 in the District Educational Center's board room.

One, a Vintage Hills School parent, will speak on behalf of several families who are reportedly concerned about the lack of school bus transportation.

A second parent will address the board on a student transportation problem involving just her family.

Trustees are scheduled to hear a transportation report from Mike Ananos, district director of transportation, and reports from school principals.

The presentation by the Vintage Hills parents, organized by Dede Ranahan, comes as the result of a letter from Mrs. Ranahan to board president Al Dutchover stating, "We are planning to attend the school board meeting to express our concerns about the cancellation of the school bus program. The parents of Vintage Hills are looking forward to working with you toward a satisfactory resolution to this situation."

In a flyer to parents of Vintage Hills students, Mrs. Ranahan asks, "Can you imagine ... kindergarteners walking in some cases a mile to and from school, children walking to school by moonlight, youngsters dodging heavy construction equipment and morning traffic, children walking on busy streets with no safety guards, kids sitting in school soaking wet due to long walks in the rain, forming car pools with neighboring mothers who work, don't drive, don't have cars, have new babies, go to school, have four kids who go to school at different times and who must watch 'Search for Tomorrow,' etc, etc."

Parents are asked to voice their concern at the school board meeting.

Mrs. Ranahan concludes by noting, "This may not concern you now but your infant will soon be anticipating his or her first day at school and will YOU want her or him (or trust her or him) to walk there (to school) safely...."

A district release 12 days ago noted that, because of budget cutbacks, some bus stops would have to be eliminated. As a result, all pupils who will attend Vintage Hills School (grades K-3) will be walkers.

With the addition of two classrooms this year, Vintage Hills is anticipating an initial enrollment of 227 students, up almost 50 from last spring.

Held in slaying of Livermore man

Boy will get murder petition

A petition alleging murder will be filed against an 11-year-old boy being held in connection with the murder of a Livermore man Friday night, said a spokesman for the Alameda County Probation Department.

Paul Green, director of the juvenile division of the probation dept., said the petition will be presented in juvenile court either Wednesday or Thursday of this week.

The petition, which is the equivalent of a complaint against an adult, is the combined result of information from the Alameda County Sheriff's Dept. and advice from the district attorney, Green said.

The boy is being held for the murder of Charles Phillips, 47, who the Sheriff Dept. spokesman said was shot in the chest with a .243-caliber rifle as he argued with his common-law wife, Nan Cate.

The shooting took place in front of Phillips' home at 5020 Arroyo Road at about 7:30 Friday night. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Valley Memorial Hospital.

In another case, a preliminary hearing date will be set for Charles William Lamont on Thursday, Sept. 11 in Livermore Municipal Court. Lamont is charged with the shotgun slaying of his wife, Helen Ferrel Lamont, on Aug. 13.

Council to weigh city growth

PLEASANTON — City councilmen will wrestle with differing state and local figures that attempt to show how large Pleasanton will become when they meet in a special session an hour before the regular council meeting next Monday.

Figures provided by the state department of finance could have a "dramatic impact" on the city's general plan because they project a much smaller growth than Pleasanton had anticipated, said City Manager Bill Edgar.

State deadline for submission of a final general plan is Sept. 30.

Pleasanton won't be bought off by gravel firms, says Herlihy

PLEASANTON — A phrase contained in a recent environmental impact report concerning the reclamation proposal for a gravel pit has struck a sour note with Mayor Pro Tem Bill Herlihy.

Herlihy asked that copies of the draft report by the Alameda County Planning Department staff be given to other councilmen for their reactions.

The report concerns a 165-acre site on Stanley Road between Pleasanton and Livermore that Lone Star Industries, Inc. and California Rock and Gravel Co. hope to excavate and reclaim during the next 20 years.

The sentence that upset Herlihy said: "Financial support received through sales tax and property tax from the (gravel excavation) operations provides net benefits to community facilities and services, without corresponding costs." The report implied, Herlihy told council members, that gravel companies could "buy Pleasanton off for a few dollars." He called that implication "a gross error."

Lone Star and Cal Rock obtained a 26-year permit to excavate the site in 1969, but were forbidden to go ahead with the project until a reclamation plan could be approved by the county board of supervisers.

The proposed plan suggests filling in the site and creating a T-shaped pond that would cover 110 acres.

The land could be used for recreational, agricultural or industrial purposes, according to the report, but it said the land might not be stable enough for buildings.

It said drawbacks to the proposal included the loss of 150 acres of prime agriculture land, although 43 acres would be created by the landfill.

The report said unavoidable drawbacks included the by-products of excavation: noise, dust, air pollution, more traffic and "visual disruption" of the landscape.

Herlihy yesterday said that any belief that "problems that might be created by gravel trucks might be compensated by revenue is grossly optimistic."

He said he believed the official position of the city should be included in the report. He said the county did not seek any imput from Pleasanton, and that Pleasanton has no say in whether the reclamation plans are approved.

"I don't think we'd object to harvesting of the gravel," he said.

"But when they start approving more pits, and the trucks are using Pleasanton streets, it seems proper that the city be asked to take an official position.

A day for labor, and for politicians

It was the annual AFL-CIO Fun Day at the County Fairgrounds, and those Labor Day festivities ran pretty much true to form. The "upwards of 5000" people on hand actually numbered in the hundreds, at least when it came time for the day's highlight ... speeches by leading political liberals from the state and the nation. But Governor Brown was a late scratch from the program, and Fred Harris — announced candidate in the 1976 presidential race — was the only liberal heavyweight on the scene.

Assemblyman Floyd Mori also made an appearance, after waiting some two hours for everyone else to show up.

Harris took some swipes at Gerald Ford, and the "super rich corporations." And then everyone went home, promising to return to the Fairgrounds at Pleasanton again next Labor Day, for an even bigger and better show.

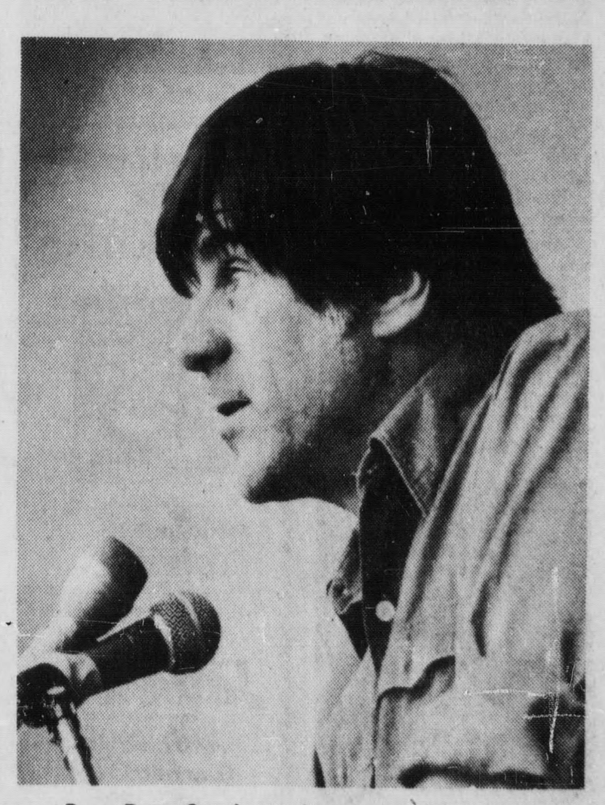
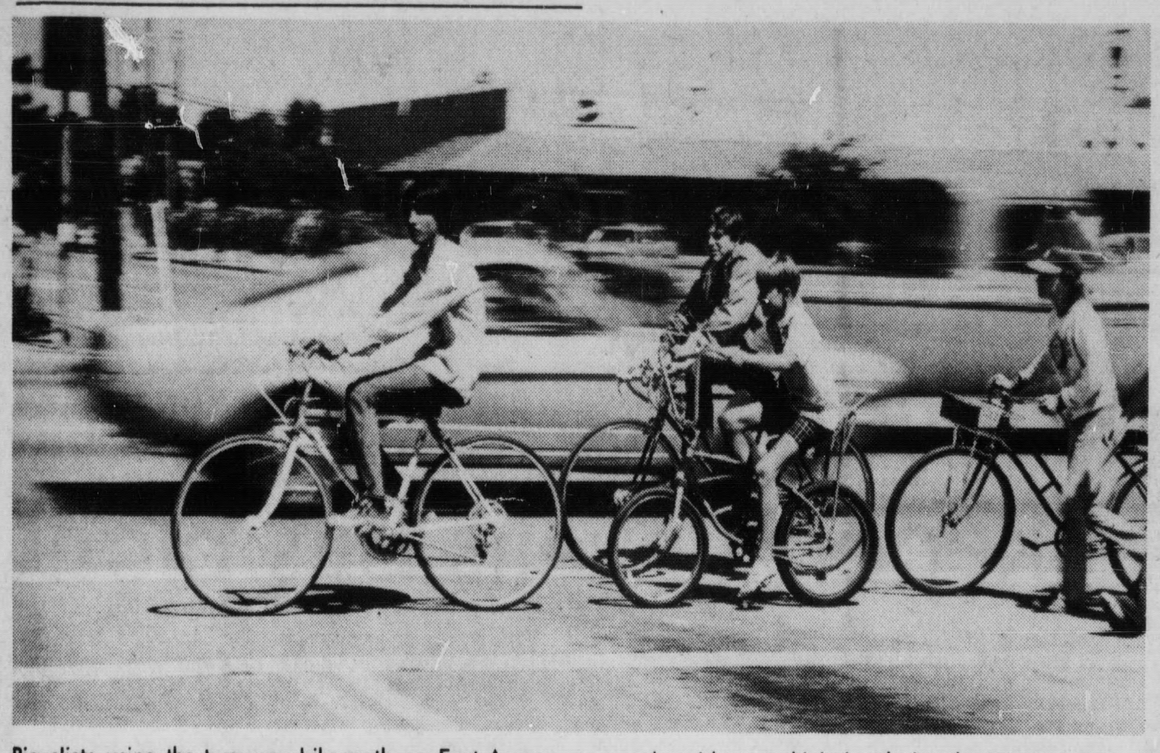
Fred Harris talked of "hiring millions". . .



. . .Rep. Pete Stark made informal appearance



Bicyclists using the two-way bike path on East Avenue head into the direction of traffic, a situation that has caused accidents and injuries during the last two years.

Along East Avenue

Cyclists want path changes

LIVERMORE — Results of a survey to help determine what should be done about a stretch of East Avenue that has proved hazardous to bicyclists show that cyclists agree several big changes are needed.

Most feel that two bike paths, one on each side of the street, instead of the present single path would be the best solution.

The two-way path on the south side of East Avenue was built about two years ago by the city and county and stretches from Madison to the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

It has resulted in accidents and injuries to cyclists because motorists, unaware of the two-way path, do not expect the bike riders to be coming into the direction of traffic.

Motorists who turn right onto East Avenue generally check to the left--but not to the right. If a cyclist is riding the two-way path against traffic, the motorist who turns right may not see the bike rider.

The results of the survey, which drew 878 responses, showed that most cyclists wanted well-drained, smooth-surfaced, one-way paths separated from traffic on both sides of the street.

East Avenue will be reconstructed to include such paths in about five years.

As an interim measure, the committee that reviewed the surveys suggested a number of changes that included creating two bike paths. But the committee suggested retaining a two-way path from Madison Avenue to Mitra so schoolchildren would not be forced to cross East Avenue at Mitra or Charlotte Way, which are high-speed areas.

The committee said that by cutting trees on the existing right-of-way along the north side of East Avenue between Charlotte Way and the lab, paving could be extended enough to allow a minimally wide, one-way path.

"Also, if the traffic lanes were restriped and narrowed by as little as six inches, an additional two-foot width would be available," it said.

The committee also recommended that a crosswalk be installed at Research Drive and bike paths be clearly marked across all intersections.

It said thought should also be given to prohibiting a right turn north onto Vasco Road from East Avenue during afternoon rush t It noted that most bikers wanted one-way paths that were separated from the road. But it added: "Any north-south bikeway that is constructed must be one which is adequate to meet the specific needs of the users of East Avenue."

Rick Dondro, a junior civil engineer with the public works department, said the city and county would work together to solve the problem.

But he said that both are uncertain of where they might get the necessary funding

Bay Area's radio aid

When a telephone won't do

There are times when a telephone just won't do the job.

For example, if you are stranded on that lonely stretch of freeway between Livermore and Tracy with a sick child on your hands or if you're deep in the hills on a hunting expedition and your partner breaks an ankle, phones just aren't available.

But if your car has citizen's band radio, and if the Bay Area Emergency Radio (BAER) can round up a few more volunteers, your problem will be solved.

Citizen's band radio is an increasingly popular method of communication over short range, and BAER is one of the more positive uses of the frequencies.

Citizen's band — which lies between television and police on the spectrum — is divided into 23 channels, and Channel 9 has been designated the emergency channel nationwide.

Radio Emergency Associated Citizens' Teams (REACT) is a national organization of which BAER is a chapter that tries to continuously monitor Channel 9 and aid police, firemen, ambulance companies and other authorities in quick handling of an emergency.

Frank Potter of Turnstone Drive in Livermore is one of the 19 members of BAER who now monitor Channel 9 in the valley. Unfortunately, they are a few hours short of manning the emergency channel round-the-clock.

"I myself monitor from 1 to 6 in the morning," Potter said, and he is hopeful that a few more volunteers can be found to cover the remaining time slots.

"We try to have at least three monitors at all times" he said, but if just a few more of the 3,500 citizen's band radio owners in the valley volunteer, that attempt will become reality.

"There's definitely a need for this kind of communication in his area" Potter believes, and since the range of the band is only about 150 miles, local organizations are required.

Potter got involved about a year ago, and now has over $1,000 worth of equipment in his home plus a mobile unit.

"I myself got it to talk with my wife" he said, and his interest grew from there

Citizen's band is different from shortwave radio, which can reach almost around the world if conditions are just right and the equipment is large enough.

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) limits the size of citizen's band equipment so that it can be a local operation.

Many truckers have citizen's band radios in their car. One of the prime uses there is to warn other truckers of the presence of highway patrol or police cars.

However, with a continuously monitored Channel 9, truckers can call in emergencies to BAER, and BAER can then call the appropriate authorities and get help.

Such citizen's band radio teams have been very helpful in locating lost children as well as in less serious matters such as parades or Walkathons.

Potter is hopeful that more citizen's band operators will join BAER, but he cautions that there is no financial reward

"We're strictly volunteers who donate their time and services to assist in emergencies" he concluded.

Those who wish to help out can contact Potter at 443-3059 or Jim Rebello at 447-6473. And perhaps when that emergency strikes where a telephone just won't do, BAER will be able to help out

Modeling class offered by LARPD

LIVERMORE — Not everyone can be a fashion model — but the grooming tips models know can be an asset to any woman.

That's the story behind two new classes being offered this fall by the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District (LARPD.)

Former fashion model Val Dawes, a graduate of the Fisher School of Modeling in San Jose, will be teaching the tips she learned in school and in her three years' experience as a model.

A photographic model for Stambros Associates in Los Gatos, Val also did promotional work with Warner Brothers Studios and is a veteran at modeling clothes for luncheon shows in restaurants

Concentrating on the "natural look," she'll teach Valley students hair and skin care and give consultations on individual makeup. Proper nutrition for physical well-being will be discussed and guidelines for making decisions about clothing choices will be presented.

"Self improvement," the 8-week course for adults, will be offered Wednesdays beginning Sept 24, 10-11:30 a.m. in the Carnegie Building.

"Modeling for Teens" will be given Tuesdays beginning Sept. 23, 7-8:30 p.m. in the same location.

Registration for all LARPD classes begins Monday, Sept. 8, at the Recreation Center, Eighth and H Streets, 7-10 p.m. and continuing at the district office, 71 Trevarno Road, daily 9 a.m -4 p.m.

Dublin boy answers call to serve the neglected

To live in the midst of the world without wishing its pleasures; to be a member of each family, yet belonging to none; to share all sufferings; to penetrate all secrets; to heal all wounds; to go from men to God and offer Him their prayers; to return from God to men to bring pardon and hope; to have a heart of fire for charity and a heart of bronze for chastity; to teach and to pardon, console and bless always; my God what a life! and it is yours, O Priest of Jesus Christ! (Lacordaire)

Frank Santos, nineteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Enrique Santos of Dublin, has left to join the Holy Cross Missionary Fathers on the first phase of seminary training in preparation for a life as either a brother of the order or a priest. If he completes his training, he will be the first priest to come from St. Raymond's Parish since its formation fourteen years ago.

The young clear-eyed friendly boy, one of ten children, is a product of local schools (Fallon Elementary, Dublin High and one year at Chabot College).

Born in Guam, his family moved here in 1956 when he was but four months old. The Santos family were among those living in Komandorski Village when it was still restricted to military housing. His father, now retired after 26 years in the Navy, works for the city of Pleasanton.

Having been attracted to the area during military duty they settled permanently in a four bedroom house in Dublin after Mr. Santos' discharge. The tastefully decorated home still carries reminders of their Island heritage Monkeypod-wood carvings are intermingled with the many school trophies accumulated by a family of nine boys and one girl.

Frank himself was a cross county track enthusiast and also played basketball at Dublin High. Nothing in his altogether normal childhood hinted at his chosen vocation; unless it was his ability to maintain of moral values and high standards in a society of permissiveness.

The warm affection and loving atmosphere his mother and father provided for their children and their own closeness to their church apparently impressed Frank.

A conscientious C.C.D. student, he worked on the QUICK and SEARCH weekends, the religious experiences provided for the teen-age youngsters of St. Raymond's parish. He says these involvements and frequent counseling with his pastor, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Bernard Moran, helped to make up his mind that his future should be dedicated to the service of God and others.

Under the encouragement of Monsignnr Moran he taught religion classes to the seventh and eighth grade boys and girls of Komandorski Village last year. He then knew more than ever that the depressed people of this world would always attract his attention.

He didn't just want to be an ordinary parish priest, but work among the really needy people as a missionary priest. He read many books and sent for informational pamphlets about different orders.

"But," he says with an ingratiating grin, "it was a poster about the Holy Ghost fathers in the entry of St. Raymond's Church that finally gave me my answer."

When the Congregation of the Holy Ghost, religious missionary priests and brothers, answered his inquiries, he knew he had found the order suited to his needs. The members of this congregation consecrate themselves to the most difficult and abandoned work in God's vineyard. They serve in almost 50 black parishes in the South and North. Other members serve in the Mexican-American and Indian parishes throughout the Southwest.

Native American sons have gone to the foreign missions in Africa, Puerto Rico, South America and Mexico.

Frank's first home will be the University of St. Thomas in Houston for the primary portion of his training. He will be enrolled at this school for four years as a Philosophy major.

These missionaries are consecrated to the most difficult work in God's vineyard.

The next phase of training will take him to the Novitiate at Glenville Springs, Colo. If he chooses to become a brother of the order, his training will stop after two years here. But, it he chooses to be a priest, the theological training necessary will continue for another four years.

As we talked you could sense his excitement and joy at the thought of starting his new life.

His mother's manner, on the other hand, was more subdued. She no doubt was thinking of how quiet her once busy house will become with Frank's absence. It will mean only two children left in a house that once bulged with over-population.

We can understand her sadness at saying good-by to such a wonderful son, but how much deeper must be her pride and her joy at knowing where he is going.

Easter Seal drive begins

The 1975 membership drive of the Alameda County Easter Seal Society will be launched this week with a 65,000 mailing to members and contributors.

As an added membership incentive, donors will have the opportunity to travel to the Carribean and South America with an air-sea tour designed for Easter Seal supporters.

Members receive publications from the local Easter Seal center, as well as voting privileges at the annual meeting and election scheduled Sept. 18 at Francesco's Restaurant in Oakland

The annual membership drive is a major fund-raising project for the county's Easter Seal Rehabilitation Center (835-2131) serving physically disabled adults and children.

Ten Commandments for plants

By SUE JOHNSON

These are "The Ten Commandments for Healthy House Plants" offered by a customer of mine. Clip out this list and post in your kitchen or workroom for quick review later.

1. Thou shalt give your plants a healthy watering once a week or oftener depending on the amount of moisture in the soil.

2. Thou shalt use clay pots that absorb moisture and prevent plant roots from soaking too long after a watering.

3. Thou shalt drench plants with each watering until the water runs out the bottom outlet, ridding the soil of salt and mineral deposits.

4. Thou shalt spray mist plants daily to provide humidity (if they are the kind that require misting). This is like giving plants a drink of water

5. Thou shalt feed plants often with fertilizer measured at HALF the recommended dose on the label.

6. Thou shalt provide enough light for plants — indirect or diffused light is best.

7. Thou shalt always use charcoal and rock, or broken clay in the bottom of a pot for proper drainage and purification of water.

9. Thou shalt use a potting soil mixture that is light and provides aeration for plant roots.

10. Thou shalt never use water-softened water because of its salt content. Water used should be at room temperature.

Rad Lab develops 'vacuum technology' course

A course in vacuum technology developed by the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory Mechanical Engineering Department will be offered this fall at Diablo Valley College in Concord.

The unusual course in a field essential to electronics, high energy physics and other future energy sources will be open to technicians, engineers and scientists

Vacuum technology is normally covered only in passing in academic courses dealing with broader topics in engineering.

However, its growing importance in controlled fusion, super-conductivity, semiconductors, particle acceleration, analytical chemistry and other areas of research have created a need for earlier and more intensive training, according to Dick Wasley of LLL's Mechanical Engineering Department.

Instructors for the course will be Lab technicians.

You'll be paying the bill, so let Congress know your choice!

Congress is about to make an important decision that could affect the cost and gas mileage of your car for years to come.

Since you will be paying the bill, we thought you should be aware of two major alternatives being considered by Congress right now. They concern the control of emissions from cars. Should the standards governing automotive emissions be made even stricter than they are today? Or are they strict enough now? Take your choice.

Choice 1

The President and his Administration have evaluated the pros and cons of current law governing emissions and recommend that the standards for today's cars be extended for five years.

Results

- There will be continued improvement of air quality as new cars replace old cars. (Compared to pre-controlled cars, today's standards result in reductions of over 80% for hydrocarbons and for carbon monoxide and about 40% for oxides of nitrogen according to industry data.)
- Working with current standards, automakers can meet their individual commitments to the President and improve industry-wide gas mileage between 1974 and 1980 by an average of at least 40%.

Choice 2

Present Federal Law calls for even stricter emissions standards for 1977-1978 model cars than those required today. Some members of Congress favor these stricter standards.

Results

- Stricter standards would add only marginal improvement to air quality. (California is an exception. It has a special air quality problem and has its own special standards.)
- To our knowledge no auto manufacturer yet knows how to meet the 1978 standards on a mass production basis. Current "best effort" experimental systems however indicate the following fuel economy and cost penalties:
  - —your gas mileage could be reduced by 5% to as much as 30% according to publicly stated company estimates
  - —the cost of your car could increase by an estimated $150 to $400 according to company estimates in statements to Congress.

Where do you stand?

These are the choices. We thought you ought to know what they are, and what they will mean to you as a customer. Your United States Senators and Representative should know what you think. Write to them.

Beach blanket bingo

Mike Zampa

Enterprising authors in the wake of recession and inflation, have introduced series of underground books to the market, aimed at showing us the inexpensive route to all sorts of entertainment, from restaurants and theatres to panderers.

There's a big market in cheap thrills, because we all can't afford dinner on Nob Hill or a Broadway show. Hints on good hot dogs and $1.50 movie houses are well appreciated.

Now all we need is one more difinitive guide for outdoor recreationalists, the one's who want only a warm day and a small plot of sandy beach awash with salty breezes.

This would not be a publication for those status-seeking surf bums who bounce from Australia to Waimea and Makaha seeking the perfect wave. Everybody knows how to find those beaches anyway. Just withdraw all your money from the savings account and present it at the travel agency.

On the contrary, this guide should serve as a helping hand for little league sun-worshipers. We're the ones who would love the ocean if it didn't have salt water, and cherish warm sand if it didn't get all over the car seat.

The book would list safe ocean climates for all of us who don't tan, but instead curdle like warm milk. It would also pinpoint towns that have provided datelines for sensational shark attacks.

If you like your ocean flat like a pane of glass, if you think waves are fine in those $22 seascapes from Sears, the following table may be of benefit. For the rest of you, check the movie listings for "The Endless Summer."

CORONADO BEACH — This is undoubtedly California's finest beach for everyone who would rather lounge by a swimming pool. It is a quarter-mile stretch of the whitest sand this side of Waikiki. The beach is a thin strand linking a Marine air base, and the historic Del Coronado, just south of the bridge from San Diego

Streaking jet planes arrive by the minute, and the only drawback is that their glide path carries right over the shoreline.

The hotel is a colorful diversion, the place where President Nixon once entertained the president of Mexico, and where John Wayne punched out a newsman. They probably would have found the Marine base more accomodating.

The ocean itself is looking-glass clear, the purest in California. It is also, perhaps, the warmest in the state. Many bathers can last up to 10 minutes before suffering terminal ear-ache. Chill-blanes can be withstood for up to 20 minutes.

SANTA BARBARA It's hard to tell whether the infamous Santa Barbara spill was never cleared up, or if the water along the two-mile crescent-shaped beach has always been such a glorious shade of brown.

It's a shame too, for Santa Barbara possesses a beautiful beach-front setting. Almost the entire sweep of coast from the tiny neighboring town of Montecito, around to sea-level Santa Barbara City College, is bordered by a grassy park. Towering palms outline beach

You have your run of the sand in Santa Barbara Nobody would swim in all of that liquid silt, so not too many folks populate the beach.

The sand is the kind that sticks to your ribs, along with any other exposed parts The only redeeming feature is that across the main drag (Cabrillo St.) from the beach rest most of the tourist motels. They all feature swimming pools open to the street. If you're quick, you can dive in, rinse off, and paddle out before the manager arrives.

HALF MOON BAY — One of the most popular Northern California beaches because it is posted as a dangerous swimming zone. That means you can look longingly at the ocean and tell every one within ear shot that you sure would love to ride those crests, when in fact, you wear a Mickey Mouse preserver in the tub.

Hard to discourse on sand quality here cause it is uniformly covered with people, frisbies, and dogs.

OCEAN BEACH — San Francisco's great escape from occassional blasts of summer heat. There's plenty of beach front except on sunny weekends when the spill-over from Golden Gate Park fills up the place. Dramatic view out to sea as ships steam through the Golden Gate. A little less dramatic when you turn around to see gaping holes in the paper mache foothills constructed years ago by the department of public works.

Again swimming is dangerous here, and frightfully cold. A trip to the second story Cliff House cocktail lounge will usually cure the fool-hearty bathers, however.

STINSON BEACH — A good place for mat surfers during the cooler months, but that doesn't concern us. In the summer the waves will hardly wet the face of your rubber ducky. It may be the finest beach in the Bay Area for reluctant beach-goers.

Stinson is not beautiful. It is nearly the color of Highway One. But it stretches on forever and doesn't get too crowded except for Labor Day, the Fourth of July, and Ground Hog Day Stinson Beach residents are different.

There is one problem presented by the locals, their occassional desire to sleep naked in the sun. This is most vexing to the once-a-year beach bum who wants to seem non-plussed in foreign terrain. The nude bathers usually situate along pathways leading from beach to dressing room. Unless you know your way around, the only way home is along those paths.

Stinson regulars will shuffle by ignoring the obvious. The rest of us stumble along, eyes in the sky, toes snagging on drift wood, and all the while whistling the Star Spangled Banner.

Oh say can you see?

Eager Gaels welcome Re

Football practice was scheduled for 2:45 yesterday afternoon at Dublin High School. The Gaels, however, were well into their warmups by 2:30, when head coach Wayne Re appeared.

"I like that," Re informed his troops. "It shows leadership."

The Gaels are going out of their way to please their first year coach in this, the second week of practice.

Wayne, assistant last year to Jim Inglesby, has ushered in an autocratic regime among the defending EBAL champions. They don't complain much, they just get to the huddle on time.

It's a lot different," returning lineman Jeff Helinga says of Re's rule "There's a lot of discipline, and no bull bleep. Somebody left a sock on the locker room floor, and we all had to run because of it."

"That's the way it's got to be," Re says of his hard line discipline. "We can't have everybody off doing their own thing."

Dublin is faced with a curious dilemma as it begins the campaign for a second ever league championship. Graduation decimated the offense, leaving just two veteran starters The defense, however, is nearly in tact. Seven of eleven return from last year.

Re will add to that nucleus with junior varsity graduates who have not lost a game in the last two seasons.

"We've got good talent I can't deny that," Re said But you can't go on what the junior varsity did last year. It all depends on how well they mature."

Dublin's defensive front should be familiar this fall, since it's nearly the same one that stifled EBAL opponents last year Mike Sperber, the 6-5, 280 wall of granite returns at one of the tackles "He's a little quicker than last year," Re says; "and he's working very hard in practice. He's a real team player."

Secondary men Jerry Puertas, Bob Jerrell and Craig Chairpotti are also veterans.

The quarterback will be Cliff Johnson, at 6-3, 185, bigger than many high school linemen. Cliff started one game for Dublin last year, but missed much of the season with a knee injury. It didn't surgery, and according to Re, is completely sound.

Johnson will be throwing to receiver Jim Hunter, a varsity player last year, and first year man Doug Ault. The latter has been impressive in drills so far.

Their is inexperience in the backfield, where Re may have to turn to some of those junior varsity products. Jim Boulware may be the best, a 1,000-yard runner last season.

Retooling the backfield could be Dublin's biggest problem early in the year, Re said. He must find replacements for all-stars Rayford and Troy Roberson.

"You can't lose kids like that and expect to replace them. They were great kids and great athletes. We'll just have to see how our guys mature."

WAYNE RE, DUBLIN'S NEW FOOTBALL COACH DRILLS DEFENDING CHAMPS
Gaels were on the field 15 minutes prior to the scheduled time.

Mercurio comes on for win

Dave Mercurio of the City Employes pitched five straight shutout innings after falling behind 3-1 in Slow Pitch softball, and wound up with a 5-3 win over Trinity Baptist in Livermore last week.

Mercurio yielded a pair of runs in the first inning on Bob Martin's single, and an unearned score in the second. He blanked the Baptists on three hits the rest of the way.

The Employes were powered by leadoff hitter Frank Moul, who collected four straight hits, and scored three runs. Gary Rose and Ray Robustelli drove in runs for the winners.

The Scribes defeated Truckin, 7-3, scoring five times in the fifth inning. John Pope's two-run triple was the deciding blow Mick Reil was the winning Pitcher, stopping Truckin on just eight hits. Dave Olmstead's triple was responsible for two of the losers' runs.

Buranis Construction defeated Ham Printing, 6-3, behind the seven-hit pitching of Dennis Dickman he yielded all three runs in the third inning, on three errors, and consecutive singles by Pete Poculba, John Arquillo and Bill Enos.

Phantom disrupts softball

Pending an investigation at the Livermore Recreation department following last nights mens Slow Pitch "B" League Tournament, the winner of the Blair Foods - Kavanagh Liquors affair, which BF won, 16-1, will be decided today due to a protest.

According to Gary Houlpberg, tourney director, BF was one man short prior to the contest. Whoever the player was who filled out the roster, he blew the scene in a hurry unnoticed afterwards.

Houlpberg confronted Herb Tootle, BF captain - no decision was reached. A cocky Foods player made his presence known, shouting to a Kavanagh player: "What the hell, you guys can't do bleep."

Tomorrow evening at Max Baer where the fruit flies outnumber the fans, floodlights leave the centerfielder groping in the dark, and little kids dig for gophers in the dugout, J.Chubb will meet the as-yet undetermined winner of last night's game at 6 p.m. If Chubb wins the game they'll win the tourney. If not a second game will be played immediately.

Last night, a relatively quick encounter, lasting just 55 minutes, under almost ideal conditions Joe Canavani pitched a 10-hit gem.

Only in the sixth did Kavanagh squeak. The losers did have numerous chances to break through Blair Foods too. But when Canavani wasn't slamming the door on them, Tom Devaney, Tootle and Corey Knapp were with sparkling defensive plays.

Overall, Liqours left ten colleagues die on the trail.

Contributing to Blair's offensive output of 19 hits, of which each player had at least one bingle, were Tom and Ray Devaney, Mike Sorrini, Larry Carpenter and Frank Fitzmorris. A total of four home runs, two by Fitzmorris and two by Sorrini were planted over the 235-foot aluminum fence onto the picnic green.

One fan reminisced about a game similar to this at Livermore Rec when the park employees had to hire a kid to sit atop the roof in left field because the department ran out of softballs due to home runs.

Fitzmorris, who tagged his second shot off the glove of utilityman Woody Manchester, before stroking a triple, Manchester recalled, "My glove hit the top bar, I was hoping the fence would have more support."

In previous games, Kavanagh lost to Chubb, while Blair Foods lost to the same club 8-2.

Gravel trucks in our distant future

If you read that long letter in Sunday's Times — the one in which top executives from the four major sand and gravel operators in this valley set forth their case — then you might better understand why this newspaper contends that the "El Charro Interchange" is a scandal of major proportions.

The gravel operators, in presenting their own defense, dig an even deeper hole than already exists in that whole, sordid affair. What they tell us, in effect, is that "the problem is a big one, getting bigger by the day, and we see no possibility of relief."

For a valley populace deeply conscious of "adverse environmental impact" on this suburban scene, what the gravel industry portends over the next 30 or 40 years is first-class pollution ... an unbroken caravan of those heavy gravel rigs rolling down Stanley Boulevard and on through Pleasanton ... hundreds and even thousands of such trips in a single work day ... spewing noise and dust and diesel exhaust on every thing and every body within 100 yards of that route.

And this is the same parade which a county "environmental impact report finds "has little need for community facilities and services ... financial support received (from those same operations) provides net benefits to the community ... without corresponding costs."

So now we have the county's definition of "enviromental impact" .. a disturbance that can be readily offset by a flow of dollars, an equation in which the nuisance factor must never exceed the income therefrom.

Even if we were to accept that kind of logic, this newspaper has evidence that the damage being rendered county and city streets by that constant battering of heavy trucks is no where near offset by the paltry flow of dollars being "paid" by those operators into any local treasury. It is not their money in the first place, but merely a rerouting of the sales taxes which every customer must first pay the gravel salesman, and which has to wind up in some city or county coffers.

The gravel extractors are getting a free ride — or a free road — and they know it. Rather than "sharing your concern" for congestion along Stanley Boulevard, First Street and so on, those firms should be taking aggressive action to solve the problem. This newspaper should not be required — nine years after an alternative plan has been agreed upon — to "expose" the fact that neither the extractors nor the county have responded to that agreement. And now it appears they never intended to abide by that pact, and never will.

Faced with 35 more years of truck pollution, we would think this valley's leadership would start screaming, and loudly.

Hindsight/Foresight

Elementary problem

If you think 74-75 was a volatile year for schools, wait'll you peek under the wrapping 'long about January or May.

Have the schools got a year for you!

That sentence would end in a question mark if we lived in Hayward or Fremont.

Actually, no matter where you live, what happens in Sacramento is pretty well going to determine what happens in Livermore, Pleasanton, Dublin, San Ramon and all parts north, east, south and west.

We are beholden to our representatives in the State Legislature more than ever before.

H-E-L-P!

It sometimes seems like monies allocated go to the wrong areas of the educational priority scale.

And the loudest (but not necessarily the most important) voices get the most attention.

Like college professors and high school students.

One of Sacramento's hottest lobbies this year has a $70 budget, no office, three or four unpaid workers, none of whom is eligible to vote.

Despite those handicaps, the high school student lobby has managed to engender numerous pieces of legislation that can make campus life just short of Eutopia....if you smoke, have an abhorrence for mandatory P.E., don't want your records revealed or in imminent danger of having some form of corporal punishment inflicted.

Dan Fleming, who runs the one-man Student Political Information Service, a clearing-house and newsletter for student-related legislation, says his mail from campuses is heaviest on such bills as the one by Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, to reduce marijuana penalties. The marijuana bill was passed and signed by Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr.

Dan didn't note if the letters were mostly for or "agin" the pot legislation.

And their are several others.

A measure by Assemblymen Gary Hart, D-Santa Barbara, would let a student testify at a hearing before being suspended from school. Another, by Sen. John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, would put a high school student on the local board when enough students request one How about that one, fans!

College students, too, have had their impact, most notably in helping to scuttle some collective bargaining bills by demanding a voice in contract negotiations. "Part of the vote came from people trying to destroy the bill, but the students had more clout than anyone expected," chimes in Vasconcellos.

"I was really impressed with those kids," comments Sen.Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, author of the smoking on campus and P.E. bills. "They don't make campaign contributions, and they don't have anything to get votes except the substance of their arguments."

But most of all they have loud, persistent voices, Senator.

Not so, it seems, elementary school teachers and their representatives.

And it is at this end of the educational tunnel that funds are so desperately needed.

The problems of unrealistic inflation factors, dwindling enrollments and school employees with dollar signs in their eyes are combining to strangle our schools.

A press release from the Hayward Unified Teachers Association opens boldly— "Will the public schools in Hayward open this fall?"

No bones about it.

Either the school board signs a "memorandum of understanding" concerning cost-of-living adjustment and program priorities or there'll be picket lines Sept. 3.

Fremont teachers are cruising along in the same "ocean" holding the same life lines.

Can it happen in Livermore, Pleasanton, Dublin and San Ramon at this time next year?

Let us work shoulder-to-shoulder and listen to each other so that it never happens.

For the biggest losers will be the elementary children, who constitute the largest segment of the school population....but who are usually never heard and only seen on open house days.

round the town

Governor Edmund Brown, Jr.
Apartment 4B,
Sacramento, CA. 95820

Dear Jer:

You may not remember me, but I was the poor slob pleading my town's case before Governor Brown SENIOR a couple of decades ago, while you were pleading your case with the old man for use of the state-owned family car. Neither of us did very well, as you might recall.

Anyway, on that basis of a friendship like that, I thought you would enjoy hearing from me again. Only this time I'm not asking for a free ride, or anything like that. On the contrary, I have this brilliant idea (like yourself, I evaluate my own work) for solving the financial crisis in our public schools.

I got this idea while watching an NBC "Sports Spectacular" the other day. The only spectacular thing about it was the commentary between plays, and that was almost exclusively on the subject of money. Big money.

"Well, Kurt, I see where Joe has finally signed for $2.2 million. Now, added to the $3.3 million he got from that perfume company, and the $1.7 million for endorsement of woman's corsets, won't that make Joe the highest paid athlete in our nation's history?"

"Not really, Harry," his broadcast partner replied, "because when you add the Hollywood contract, the apartment building and the $200,000-a-year for life they are offering Bobby Orr, that will put him $117,000 ahead of Joe, or at least that's how my figures look. How do your figures look, Howard?"

The conversation went along like this for quite some time (I frankly forget what sport it was they were broadcasting), but I want to tell you, Jer, the whole thing got me to thinking. "If the big-money people are willing to dish out that kind of sugar to buy an athlete's services," says I to me, "then why not share some of that wealth with the system that produced the athlete in the first place?"

Now, as any fool knows, Jer, the training of a professional football or basketball or baseball player really starts down around the 8th grade somewhere, picks up momentum in high school, and then turns out the finished product with four years of concentrated coaching at college.

All that time the taxpayer is picking up the tab ... for coaches, medical insurance, shoulder pads and uniforms. It's costing us a bundle, Jer, and you know it! (And I haven't even mentioned the $30,000 us parents shell out to finance a kid from kindergarten through college ... including the third-string bench that's needed to give the all-stars a breather, every now and then.)

Now I says to me, how about getting the people who make big profits building professional teams out of high school and college athletes to pay us for our investment in training those kids?

After all, we make bona fide college students repay those loans they get to finance their education; and I can recall a whole mess of penalties paid out in library fines, for lab material damaged, light switch broken in her dorm room. That sort of thing. I figure if the State of California is willing to dun me for a blessed book, or a broken light switch, then you state folks , will sure as blazes want to charge those big sports moguls when they reach down into our universities and junior colleges and pluck out the very best of our athletic crop.

And it's not that they would miss it, Jer. I figure that $40,000 paid the University of California for a Steve Bartkowski would be like ten percent of what they'll pay Bart in wages over the next two years. And if they threw in $10,000 for his high school and maybe $1000 for his grade school coaching, it wouldn't dent their budget much at all.

But it sure would help dent the educational deficit in this state. Better yet, Jer, it would make us taxpayers (especially the ones whose kid did NOT make the team) feel a little better about all this emphasis on big school sports, big pro sports, and big, big money.

So what do you think, Jer? I figure there are maybe like 200 college kids every year in this state who use their scroll as a pipeline into pro sports. So if we picked up maybe $50,000 for each of them "in payment for school services rendered," well ... it might be enough to at least restore remedial reading for the ninth grade.

Nice to talk to you, Jer, and give my regards to that father of yours. I never really liked him, either.

Very cordially yours
John Edmands

(P.S. I see all these news photos of you walking to work from your apartment every morning. Does that mean you STILL can't get the use of the state-owned family car? Or maybe they've lifted your driver's license for some past transgression. Please let me know. Could make a great story. Regards.)

What is wrong?

Editor, The Times:

It has been said time and time again, a silent enemy has been growing within America for many years. I believe this to be the case involving Mr. Spiliotopoulos. The enemy is a fundamental attitude, a normal outgrowth of the spiritual bankruptcy of our modern society and a poverty of ability so evident in many of our society's leaders — whatever field they may occupy. The enemy is a Spirit of Defeat.

Politically, I have seen it glare through the dispirited hopelessness of citizens, who although disturbed by undesirable trends in government, have surrendered their civic responsibility claiming; "Aw decent people can't win!" — even though victory hangs ripe for the taking.

Action does not require the citizen to brew up hatred against some particular political or social group, regardless of the provocations which some may offer.

But it does require getting up from in front of the T.V. set, brushing up on point-of-view and how to behave in public, and going to see civic leaders to express concern and persuasion in favor of what is Right, as well as exposing what is Wrong.

It means that if one knows of a civic offical (s) who is not doing a job, one sees to it that the offical(s) knows that as many people as possible are aware of his failures, and that they are putting him on notice that performance is expected. If the official's attitude remains poor, or worsens, if the performance continues to be unacceptable, give another warning if it seems merited. Otherwise start moving up the chain of command until acceptable results are gained.

If a civic leader of any kind comes forth with a foolish or irresponsible statement, concentrate on that statement and challenge him on it-and keep challenging, respectfully, with due regard for his feeling-until he accepts your point of view or rejects it out of hand. (I haven't even been extended the courtesy of a rejection from the Board of Supervisors.)

If results are not forthcoming from the Top, keep on them until election-time or a few months before, at which time it is time to locate worthwhile replacements and back them all the way . . . hard.

Basically I'm thinking of all of those who reacted on the Spiliotopoulos affair. If they are truly serious enough to show their concern by writing, calling, and/or verbally extending praise and asking what they can do to assist, will show an equal concern on the execution of the electe duties of our society leaders of Alameda County, now, as well as election time.

I would like to commend the Pleasanton Times in the relentless support of exposing such an offensive community matter, and ask that the News continues to be printed on this subject until it is completely exposed.

Peace officers

Editor, The Times:

The charges and counter charges arising from George Spiliotopoulos' experience at Santa Rita revives the perrenial question of what to do about our over enthusiastic peace officers at the Santa Rita facility. There is a simple solution. I quote from the September issue of Ms. magazine: "require cops to spend a month in jail incognito as part of their training . . . going through the arrest-questioning-trial procedure too. Besides producing sensitized police, think of the impact on prison guards, etc. al., who could never be sure whether they were handling a prisoner or a rookie cop about to file a report."

I confident that this training would greatly diminish the use of "reasonable force." Mr. Houchins, of course would be too easily recognizable for this type of training. Perhaps he has a son who could serve in his stead?

City dictators

Editor, The Times:

There!! A guy named Graffenstatte said it an it made the front page. "Dictatorial"!! That's what he said and that's what a lot of us are saying too!

We seem to have a clique of small - town politicians who have let themselves be overcome by their own sense of Power. They would cram all sorts of atrocities down our throats without so much as a "by your leave" — as witness the Redevelopment Plan and Planning Commission vs. Graffenstatte. This attempt by various commissions to curtail Mr. Graffenstatte's privately financed redevelopment plans is but a small example of what we can expect in the future unless we move NOW to curtail these commissions and committees. Too bad Mr. Graffenstatte couldn't afford to leave his measly $100,000.00 investment in its present condition and let the Planning and/or Redevelopment Commission fix it up to their own satisfaction. But then, they would only take more money from us taxpayers and it wouldn't touch their pockets at all. Ahh — if only Graffenstatte and the rest of us could operate a business like these city planners and administrators — on dreams of future taxes — just raise the taxes a little more — Joe Taxpayer is so busy working to pay his present taxes he won't even notice that we are collecting four cents or six cents more per hundred this year.

All this red - tape create a multitude of questions in my mind . . . What is a Building Permit Survey for which Mr. Graffenstatte must pay $1,000. Who gets the $1,000! How many other people have paid how much for these Surveys? Why can't a private individual determine for himself if he can establish and improve (and profitably operate) a business in accordance with Uniform Building and Business Codes? Why do we need to pay so many economically unqualified city adminstrators big salaries to make unsound financial decisions for private enterprise? Why can't we use city planners to discuss upcoming public needs and then submit these needs to the voters on an annual basis? Why in times of economic distress, do we need all these new city program? Why can't we eliminate 50% of the present Adminstrators, their salaries, thpir staffs, their Gobble-de-gook — think how much money this would free for public improvements through this maneuver alone? Why can't we have a Recall Election to get rid of the city councilmen who appointed or hired and sustain in office, all these handy - dandy city administrators in the first place??

How about some plain answers Mr. Edgar and Associates — but leave out John Bowling — we've already heard him talk for hours and not only fail to answer any questions — he didn't even say anything!

Liberty for all

Editor, The Times:

The answer to the question whether public employees have the right to strike can be found in the pledge of allegiance to the flag ". . . with liberty and justice for all." To deny some the rights granted to others is, in my opinion, un-American.

Sound and Fury

Walt Hecox

School days are here my friends and out in the back yard the leaves on the birch trees, fresh and springtime tender a day or so ago it seems, are wilting some and losing their color.

Soon they will be autumn yellow and beautiful I suppose.

I prefer them green. There are those who tell me autumn is the most beautiful time of the year and perhaps they are right.

I have driven through Hope, Faith and Charity valleys in the high Sierra late in November when the first hard freezes hit the aspen and the leaves shivering before the autumn wind looked like rolling flame against the bare granite mountain tops.

I prefer summer. Those golden days when the zinnias are budding and yellow zucchini blossoms peaking out from their sheltering, fan shaped leaves.

Blistering days and balmy evenings when we sit in the patio and watch Kiwi the cat seek shelter from marauding mocking birds under the sturdy legs of Little Black Max.

Dewy summer mornings with the sun hiding behind Dougherty Ridge and a man must walk carefully to avoid stepping on the tiny toads which carpet the putting greens while Max and his girl friend Sam, the Labrador retreiver, roam over the golf course and the rough, particularly the rough, disturbing the peace of jackrabbits and meadowlarks, evoking a bounding burst of energy from one, a song of rare beauty from the other.

The good things come with summer. School is out and Skeeter is free to wander from shop to shop, spending more money in her mind than ever parts from her pockdtbook.

For a little while I too am free and then we roam together, this summer to Arizona and the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, to Jerome, the ghost town turned hippie and then to faraway Puerto Vallarta where Moray eel, giant octopus, checkered sea snakes and fish every color of the rainbow wait in the reefs off Mismaloya.

Summertime and long, lazy weekends with trips to the Nut Tree for lunch and Yountville for shopping and one slightly shorter but far more serious journey to Capitola where Darrell Sedgwick, my boyhood buddy, listened to my chest with a stethoscope and had his technicians take my blood and told me eventually I must change my way of living if I want to stay long on this tired old globe.

"Go to Japan and eat a Japanese peasant's diet and you will live forever," he said. "Great," I told him "There's nothing better than hot saki unless its sashimie" "That's shogun diet," he replied. "Raw albacore is out. So is hot wine. I said peasant food. Whitefish and rice."

We celebrated the coming of a new day for this old man with a logger's breakfast. A six ounce ham steak, three eggs and a large rasher of hash brown potatoes. Toast and jam with fruit on the side and plenty of hot coffee.

"No sense rushing things," Sedge had said. "Ease into the routine slowly. Be ready for the whole program after Labor Day weekend."

So I eased in slowly. With chili sauce and bean dip after laying down a proper foundation of wheat squeezings. Piping hot tortillas dripping my own mixture of melted butter and chili sauce.

An inch thick steak blood rare. Mint chip ice cream and a Ramos Fizz Sunday morning then six little pig sausages, a rasher of bacon, scrambled eggs, a slice of ham and a bowl of assorted melon and pineapple for brunch Ease into it slowly the man said and ease I did.

Now Labor Day has come and gone. The food went with it. Each blessed delicacy is a memory.

I have mourned the coming of autumn each year. There is a lump hard in the pit of my stomach (which is NOT food) and tears are creeping from their ducts.

Summertime is nearly over as they said in the song, really over for the Hecox family with Skeeter back in the bondage of the San Ramon Unified School District and my three day weekends a memory.

We went to the Raider game with San Francisco Saturday night, a depressing spectacle for me always because someone I like is bound to lose, and felt the bite of autumn in the air.

Football season has always been the only part of fall that I could bear. The pain of watching leaves turn russet and fall has always been eased, somewhat, by the thump of padded bodies on the gridiron, the spectacle of toe dancing laddies whose nimble grace takes them helter-skelter through the bodies of fallen behemoths and across a double line.

This year I am not even sure football will do the job. It has been fun visiting the coliseum and listening to the maniac mob cheer for the lads in Silver and Black.

Perhaps the greatest football team of all time resides in Oakland this year. Certainly they have looked invincible each time I saw them play this year.

Against the 49ers, a team I have loved for many years, they were magnificent. Ken Stabler was at his inimitable best while he was in the game, demonstrating clearly what the Raiders have the 49ers do not.

A man cannot help but rejoice for John Madden and his lads, all good men and deserving of anything they get.

Unfortunately I can't say as much for the Raider fans. And if the greatest football team in the world is down there on the field each fall, the crummiest collection of football fans ever created by some gross, heavenly oversight sit in section 310.

They are gross, noisy, crude, rude and imbecillic. Section S at old Kezar Stadium housed intelligencia compared to the oafs who sit in Section 310.

Believe me, they are going to be hard to live with. But a man will go to any length to ease the monotony of gusty autumn skies.

Even endure the mongoloids in Section 310.

But it's going to be a long journey to Christmas.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This will be a pleasurable day if you do things as your urges indicate. Break-up routine with a fun activity.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A way to handle a frustrating situation will now be found. The methods you'll use will be bold and unique.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You will be the recipient of some information that you'll use profitably. Act promptly before you lose interest.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your material prospects are extremely encouraging today. Give matters relating to income or finances top priority.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Others will be looking to you today to take the lead. Be assertive and exercise your initiative.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A profitable opportunity could come your way today through a very unusual channel. Be alert. A family member may have a hand in it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Two friends are almost as anxious as you are to see you get something you've been hoping for. They'll help where they can.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Disregard the odds. Pursue your goals today. If you're tenacious enough, the victory is yours.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Take the long-range view today, rather than the immediate one. Substantial benefits will come later from plans well-laid now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It would be difficult to put one over on you today businesswise. Profit from your dealings is very likely.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have the ability to see both sides of issues today quite clearly. Base your acts upon your impressions.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There are bonuses in store for you if you're enterprising. Do an extra good job for the boss today.

Your Birthday

Sept. 3, 1975

Dame Fortune has some aces up her sleeve for you this coming year. Benefits that you were entitled to, but were deprived of, will be coming your way.

Opening lead — J ♥

By Oswald & James Jacoby

All suit Stayman, as the name implies is a form of the Stayman convention in which the response is in the cheapest decent four-card suit.

Most modern experts use the jump from one to four notrump as a slam invitation, the jump from one to six as a stop bid — not that they aren't stopping pretty high — and the jump from one to five notrump as an all suit Stayman grand slam invitation.

North has only 18 points opposite his partner's notrump opening, but he has two four-card minor suits and is definitely interested in seven, if South can show a four-card fit for either of them.

When South does bid six clubs, North is off and running. His six-diamond call announces that he has grand slam interest. South's six-spade bid accepts the idea of a club grand slam. South has a mere 16-point notrump but his doubleton diamond looks like money from home. Hence, his six-spade bid.

This is enough for North. He bids seven clubs and South has no trouble making the club grand slam. On the other hand, there are only 12 tricks at notrump.

Ask the Jacobys

A Halifax reader asks, "What is the correct standard American response to a one diamond opening with ♠ Q ♥ J 10 2 ♦ K 10 6 5 4 ♣ K 9 5 2?"

The answer is that you have to make the underbid of three diamonds. This hand shows why we like to play the jump raise from one to three as good, but not forcing.

'Closed door' sessions

League challenges board

MARTINEZ--The League of Women Voters of Diablo Valley has challenged closed door litigation sessions of the county board of supervisors.

Supervisors wrer adjourning to executive session to discuss a petition from opponents of the Blackhawk development Tuesday when Kathleen Nimr, league representative, accused them of violating the Brown Anti-secrecy Act.

The board had called the closed session to discuss possible legal action with County Counsel John Clausen on the issue of whether or not annexing the Blackhawk Ranch area to water and sewer districts could be taken to voters on a referendum, as suggested in the petition.

"We disagree that litigation is legal grounds for referring this petition to executive session," Ms. Nimr said.

"The question before you today is whether or not, legally, this petition is referendable," she said.

The group circulating the peition, the Friends of Mt. Diablo, have indicated they may sue the county if the matter isn't placed on the ballot.

Ms. Nimr said closed sessions were warranted when they delt exclusively with litigation or discussions that would be detrimental to the public interest.

"Neither circumstance applies here," she said. "In fact, we believe that the public interest lies in its having a right to know if this issue is referendable, and on what deliberations any findings are based."

Last week Clausen had expressed concern about the methods used in circulating the petition.

Ms. Nimr said "this is not a proper subject for executive session....The board's decision on this petition cannot be based on how signatures were collected."

Before the board went into closed session, Clausen said the Brown Act "clearly recognized" the confidentiality of the attorney-client relationship with public attorneys and governmental bodies.

"Obviously any action taken is done in open session," he said.

The newly established facility is open weekdays, 12 to 6 p.m., with a fee of $1 charged during the day and a $1.25 fee in the evenings. On weekends and holidays, the same hours prevail with cost during the day $1.25 and evenings $1.50. One half price is applicable to children under 12 when accompanied with a parent. Group and party rates are available.

Ford expects support for Mideast plan, promises he won't act alone

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford expects approval to use American technicians as monitors in the Sinai, despite opposition from congressmen concerned that a U.S. role could lead to Vietnam-type involvement, the President's spokesman said Tuesday.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford will not act without congressional approval, which he expects "within a couple of weeks."

The Middle East peace plan, signed by Egyptian and Israeli leaders Monday, provides for American civilians to man monitoring stations in order to assure compliance with the agreement.

Some congressmen immediately voiced concern that an American presence in the Sinai could lead to another Vietnamtype conflict or could make the technicians symbols for terrorists "who want to blow things up."

Nessen said the White House sees no danger of the Sinai situation leading to another Vietnam.

"I see no similarities with the Vietnam situation," he said.

Nessen said Ford had given advance notification of the details of the peace pact to 29 congressional leaders Monday and that most indicated they would go along with the pln.

Ford also plans to hold a two-hour breakfast meeting with congressional leaders Thursday for further discussion of the agreement.

Nessen said the President would write to the speaker of the House and to the president of the Senate expressing his desire for a congressional vote on using the American technicians.

The White House will not be able to give details about how much the American participation will cost until it has conferred with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who returns today from the Middle East.

Ford, in telephone conversations with Kissinger and the Israeli and Egyptian heads of state, called the peace agreement an "historic" event and a "constructive contribution" to peace.

Aid to Viet refugees will triple

Lesher News Bureau

MARTINEZ — The $5,800 paid monthly out to aid Vietnamese refugees in Contra Costa County is expected to triple by the end of the fiscal year, next June.

Supervisors received a report on the county's refugee program Tuesday from County Administrator Arthur Will.

As of last month, 143 refugees had applied to the county for assistance, according to the report. Officials expect about 390 refugees to eventually settle in the county.

Administrative expenses and the aid payments should be fully reimbursed by the federal government, Will said.

He said the county was waiting for guidelines on how to apply for the federal reimbursements authorized by legislation signed by President Ford in May.

Until specific federal programs are outlined, refugees are being taken care of under existing aid programs, with about half the cases coming under the Aid to Families With Dependent Children program, Will said.

The County Department of Social Services has been hiring translators. Many refugees speak little or no English.

A total of 131,200 refugees have come into the country, with about 39l000 expected to eventually settle in California.

Bond issue possible

Foes plan vote to purchase Blackhawk site

By CATHY TALLYN
Times Staff Writer

DANVILLE — Opponents of the planned housing development at Blackhawk Ranch are contemplating purchasing the land through a bond issue to keep it open space.

The Friends of Mt. Diablo announced they may try to place the question of buying the 4,800 acres bordering Mt. Diablo State Park on the same ballot as their referendum.

That referendum seeks to halt the housing development by denying developers key water and sewage services.

Friends spokesmen say if such a bond was passed by local voters to buy the land, the cost would add less than two cents per $100 assessed valuation onto tax bills.

However, Friends are still seeking putting the referendum on either the November or June, 1976, ballot.

The county board of supervisors has yet to act on when or whether the question will go on the ballot.

However, Friends makes it clear they won't accept a compromise from Blackhawk and they will campaign vigorously to get the measure passed.

Friends are also threatening to sue the county if the supervisors don't place the matter on the ballot or rescind approval of including Blackhawk within the Central Sanitary and other service districts.

Thursday night, Friends voted unanimously not accept a compromise agreement with Blackhawk developers who reportedly would scale-down the first phase in return for Friends not pushing the referendum.

"There will be no compromise. The referendum precludes us from making a settlement.

"We won't take that decision out of the people's hands.

"They expect it to be voted on," explained Norma Woodward of the group.

Mrs. Woodward, along with those who spear-headed Walnut Creek's successful open space bond issue, is looking into the possibility of buying the land.

"Developers very often say, 'What are you going to do with it (the land)? You won't let us develop it.'

"We've said it should be in open space and in the state park. A lot of people felt we should look into it," she explained.

Mrs. Woodward estimates if it was a county-wide bond issue, it would cost $1.14 per $100 assessed valuation over a period of 30 years.

Mrs. Woodward based the estimate on purchase of Blackhawk at $4.8 million, what Blackhawk developers claim they paid for the land, she said.

This would amount to a cost of $1.14 to the owner of a $40,000 home.

However, if Blackhawk is appraised at more considering what the developer has put into it, the cost could be more, she said.

"Three appraisals are made for bond issues so it wouldn't be Blackhawk saying you have to pay this much or us saying we will only pay this," Mrs. Woodward said.

If the question of the county buying Blackhawk isn't voted on when the referendum is, and the referendum is defeated the value of the land might go down, she added.

Friends is not quite sure when it would or even if it would submit this additional question to the county's voters.

However, they admit it's a strong possibility at the moment they will present a purchase proposal to the board of supervisors to put on the ballot.

The question of who would administer the land if it was bought for open space is also unanswered.

The county has no park district.

Danville and Alamo have a special park district, but if Blackhawk was just included in that district only residents of that area would vote on and pay for it.

One solution might be to include the land in the East Bay Regional Park District, Mrs. Woodward said.

"There are a lot of questions to be answered and a lot of decisions to be made.

"I'm really pretty sure we couldn't put together an alternative (to Blackhawk) very soon.

"It took the open space committee in Walnut Creek some time to do it," she explained.

The measure passed by a large majority in Walnut Creek.

Various members of the Friends had met with Blackhawk officials before Thursday night's meeting attended by over 100 people involved in Friends.

Owen Schwaderer of Blackhawk said they have met with the Friends about redesigning Blackhawk and will continue to meet with them.

However, he said they aren't contemplating selling the Blackhawk Ranch land.

Dublin restaurant plans expansion

Alameda County Bureau

The Hong Kong Restaurant on Village Parkway in Dublin is planning to expand, and the the first step involves approval from the Alameda County Zoning Administrator this afternoon at 1:30 in Hayward.

Don Hucke, the trustee for the restaurant, will ask permission to extend the present building to the side boundary. In essence, one wall will be knocked out and the building will be extended in that direction. None of the other dimensions will change.

Zoning Administrator Dick Flynn will also hold a revocation hearing on the conditional use permit for Henry Franco and the Camperos Del Valle Club. The Mexican rodeo club was granted a conditional use permit some time ago and was saddled with 19 conditions.

One of the conditions was adequate fencing of the property along Vallecitos Road and the zoning department received a complaint that a bull was escaping at the west end of the property.

Approximately, one month ago, Franco appeared before the zoning administrator and assured him that the problems were being dealt with. Today's hearing is to determine that the difficulties have indeed been handled.

The continuing battle over billboards will be renewed this afternoon as well as the Hilltop Investment Company and the Eller Outdoor Advertising Agency will ask that a sign at 4460 First St. be allowed to stand.

According to Supervisor Joseph Bort, the county passed a sign ordinance in 1969 and so far not one billboard has come down as a result of that action.

W.J. Armstrong, the operator of Summit Garage at 10617 Altamont Drive (east of Dyer Road), will ask that his automobile wrecking yard be allowed to continue operation in an agricultural zone

Two local property owners will request that they be allowed minor variances — Richard Day and Kenneth Quick want to keep a mobile home on property on South Front Road in Livermore while Norman Knobel wants to enlarge his house and thus decrease his yard size at 8266 Cavalier Lane in Dublin.

Youngster held in shooting death

LIVERMORE — An 11 year old boy is being held in connection with the fatal shooting of a Livermore man Friday night.

Charles Phillips, 47, of 5020 Arroyo Road was shot in the chest by a rifle as he was arguing with his common-law wife, Nan Cate, in front of his home.

The youth was expected to be turned over to juvenile authorities, said an Alameda County Sheriff's Department spokesman.

Children's clothes

Why so much for so little?

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Inflation! Look at a newspaper, turn on the television, listen to the radio. It is one of the most frequently used words and a situation that is familiar to every American family.

From the five-cent candy bar to the family home, it is clear that today's prices are definitely higher than yesterday's and tomorrow's will be higher still.

There are some areas, children's clothes for example, where there is no way out of the high cost.

Listen to mothers who are faced with the high price of children's clothes: "Look at that; it's so little." "He can only use it for one year; that's an awful lot of money." "Why does that little thing cost so much?"

Why indeed?

"Because," as one manufacturer clearly explained, "with the exception of a little more fabric, the costs in producing a garment for a child is precisely the same as it is for an adult. If you want a quality garment, you have to pay the price. You can cut corners on the fabric but you are still faced with the same labor, the same showrooms, the same shipping, the same billing, the same electricity — my bill has jumped from $3,200 to $6,000 in the past few months. There's very little you can eliminate."

Another manufacturer prided the industry by pointing out that the cost for children's clothes had not increased as rapidly as it had for men's and women's wear.

Practically the first questions a buyer asks when purchasing children's clothes are: "Is it washable?" "Does it need ironing?" To meet these demands, the cost of the fabric must go up. This is happening less and less as experimentation with fibers continues and breakthroughs in producing less expensive, easy-care fabrics expand. However, permanent press textiles do cost more. This evens out with saving time on the washing and money on dry cleaning.

Designers are very aware of keeping costs down when they are preparing for a new season. They look for shortcuts and ways to save money without losing out on styling or changing fabric. If on the other hand, they find a new textile which is suitable to the design and doesn't detract from the other criteria of their particular company, they are delighted with the prospect.

Although manufacturers of expensive clothes for children have gone by the wayside, there still are a very substantial number making costly clothes because they will not compromise their workmanship. One executive at a firm specializing in boys' clothes said, "This company prides itself on using all the best fabrics. Textile prices skyrocketed and we could not absorb or pass on the increase. Yet we were expected to deliver quality. We searched and tested until we finally found a substitute fabric of polyester that felt like the woolen blends we've been so proud of, and we are glad to make the change."

A large volume manufacturer said that he did a large enough business to mechanize the cutting and sewing aspects of his operation. He agreed that this was not feasible for most of his competition. And it was the last corner he could cut.

"If you think prices are high now, just wait and see what will happen if the new Federal fire-retardant laws are passed," he added.

"It is a very lengthy and expensive process to prepare fabric and the total garment — seams, trim, closures — to the point where they are acceptable under the anticipated, stringent specifcations. It's not that I'm against it; safety is very important, but the prices are going to jump enormously. Look at pajamas. Prior to the legislation that established the fire retardant standards, a pair of kids' pajamas could cost a dollar in a five-and-dime store. Now you'd be lucky if you could find a similar pair for $4."

"Where will it end?" "What can we do?"

Based on a small sampling of shoppers, it is clear that parents look for quality. Classic, stylish, well-made clothes that will still look good for a second or third child or for a cousin or friend's child. They demand clothes that can be tossed into the washing machine so that there is no additional cost in the upkeep.

Many look to the separates as a solution. Buying pants, skirts, jackets, shirts, even sweaters and jumpers in coordinating colors and fabrics gives flexibility.

"It's a little more expensive with separates because I get carried away. My child has a variety of outfits to choose from and always looks well-dressed. In fact, she isn't very imaginative with her clothes and used to look thrown together when she was allowed to decide on her own. This way she makes her own choices and still looks neat. It's good because a few items go a long way."

One salesgirl recommended little dresses with buttons at the shoulders but agreed that the best method by far was separates.

"Buying individual pieces make the clothes last longer. Children don't seem to outgrow two-pieces as rapidly as they shoot out of dresses. I guess some parents buy items that they hike up one year to make them shorter and drop down the next to make them longer."

Designers are aware and are constantly being reminded of the high cost of dressing junior. Believe me, there isn't one designer, no matter what kind of manufacturer he works for, that doesn't concentrate on cutting costs. If there's a way to do it, it will be done. But it becomes increasingly more difficult as the prices for everything involved in the production keep going up.
